

United States Senate
WASHINGTON, DC 20510

Dear Friend:

Each day you and I find ourselves in an increasingly information-based world. The computer has offered us ever greater progress and convenience, but also greater opportunity for thieves to take advantage of each and every one of us. These criminals attack across every age group, race and income level without discrimination.

I am therefore excited to invite you to join us for an "Attacking Identity Theft" consumer education seminar I am sponsoring on Tuesday, October 11th at 9:00 a.m. at Jones Auditorium on the campus of Meredith College in Raleigh.

This event will feature presentations and discussions on identity theft awareness. We will discuss how thieves steal personal and financial information, suggest ways to prevent your personal information from being stolen, and explore remedies available to victims of identity theft. This workshop will feature representatives and information from a number of federal and state agencies, including the Federal Trade Commission, the U.S. Postal Inspection Service, the U.S. Secret Service, the Social Security Administration, and the N.C. Department of Justice, as well as representatives from the banking and credit reporting industry. A draft agenda and registration information are enclosed.

Reservations will be on a first-come, first-serve basis, so please act now to reserve your space at this important and informative event. For additional information on the conference itself, please call Samantha Edwards in my Raleigh office at (919) 856-4630.

I hope you will be able to attend this important seminar at Meredith College on October 11th!

With warmest best regards,

How secure is your personal and your financial data?
What can you do to protect your identity?
How can you recover from identity theft?
